He devoted much time and money since he ceased to teach school to the cause of education. It was the hope of his life to be able to build a schoolhouse which would be a credit to the town. In 1883 his hope was realized. That year he erected the Singles High School, which ranks with the best educational institutions in the State. Since the construction of the schoolhouse lits founder has maintained it at his own expense.

CHARGES DISPROVED quest special tests were made by Frank W. Hibbs, Assistant Naval Constructor, U. S. N., in order to prove that Dunraven's allegations as to the apparently changed water line of the Defender were actually based on an optical Illusion

THE FINDINGS. It is very much to be regretted that if Lord Dunraven's suspicions were not dispelled at the time of the remeasure-ment of the Defender on the 8th of September, he did not say so then, instead of accepting in silence the result which verified the previous measurement. The remeasurement was the committee's response to the communication which they had received through Mr. Fish. In con-nection with their knowledge of the circomstances which made it impossible that the imputed fraud could have been perpetrated without Mr. Iselin's concur-rence, and their knowledge of Mr. Iselin, it satisfied them; and, as we have seen, it justly satisfied them.

To all appearance it satisfied Lord Dunraven. He was present at the remeasurement and met there the mem-bers of the committee and Mr. Iselin, He made no request for further action. He made no objection to proceeding without further action. He made no inquiry as to how or how fully his oral message through Mr. Fish had been delivered, and no suggestion that any request which he supposed to have been contained in that message bad not been complied with.

He sailed the next race in the series that had been agreed on without protest or objection on account of the change which he told Mr. Fish he believed to of the Defender before the first race and he testified that his belief that such a change had occurred did not influence him in his final withdrawal from the match at the third race.

The Cup Committee seems to have been warranted in supposing that Lord Dunraven's suspicions were allayed and that no further steps were necessary to settle any question of fact or to vindicate

Upon a careful consideration of the whole case, the commit-tee are unanimously of the opinion that the charge made by Lord Duncaven, and which has been the subject of this in-vestigation, had its origin in mistake; that it is not only not sustained by evidence, but is completely disproved; and that all the circumstances indicated by him as giving rise to his suspicions are entirely and satisfactorily explained. They deem it, therefore, but just to Mr. Iselin and the gentlemen concerned with him, as well as the officers and crew of the Defender, that the committee should express emphatically their conviction that nothing whatever occurred in connection with the race in question that casts the least suspictor upon the integrity or propriety of their conduct. And the committee are not willing to doubt that, if Lord Dunraven had remained present throughout the investigation, so as to have heard all the evidence that was introduced, he would, of his own motion, have withdrawn charge that was so plainly founded upon mistake, and that has been so unfortunate in the publicity it has attained and the feeling to which it has
